STATE PARKS
AREAS, ACREAGES, AND ACCOMMODATIONS

FOREWORD

This tabulation lists the State parks and related types of recreation areas throughout the United States, together with the acreages and accommodations for each, as of January 1, 1960. This supersedes the 1955 edition.

Data contained in this tabulation were obtained from a survey conducted by the National Park Service. Included is information on areas administered by 99 agencies in the 50 States, 97 of which submitted reports. The latest information available to the Service was used for the agencies which did not submit a report.

State waysides administered by State park agencies are included in this tabulation, but waysides administered by highway departments and other agencies have been omitted. State forests and wildlife areas are not included since these areas are not administered primarily for recreation use.

Fractions of acres have been avoided by using the nearest whole number. Footnotes appear at the end of the tabulation.

In addition to the tabulation of areas, acreages and accommodations, an "Analysis of Data," a "Classification of Areas," a "Summary of Totals by States," and "Comparative Totals" are also included to help in interpreting these data. A listing of State park agencies is given in Appendix A.

CLASSIFICATION OF AREAS

Areas are listed as reported by the agencies administering State parks and related recreation areas. The 70 categories of areas reported do not necessarily conform to the six classifications (parks, monuments, recreation areas, beaches, parkways, and waysides) adopted by the Board of Directors of the National Conference on State Parks in 1954. The areas listed have been grouped under five headings for summary purposes as shown below; but even this grouping does not reflect the situation in a manner that is fully satisfactory because of the variation among the States. For example, some of the States designate historical areas as State parks, and the States classify most of their beaches as State parks.

1. State Parks

State parks	Interstate parks
State arboreta	Major state parks
State reservations	Minor state parks

ANALYSIS OF DATA

The data reported by State park agencies in 50 States show encouraging gains in the number of areas and in park acreage, and substantial gains in the overnight accommodations in the five-year period since publication of the last comparable report, State Parks--Areas, Acreages and Accommodations, 1955, as shown by the following figures:

Total number of Areas	2,589, increase of 28 percent
Total Acreage	5,497,278, increase of 8 percent
Number of Hotels and Lodges	82, increase of 28 percent
Number of Cabins	3,801, increase of 15 percent
Number of Individual Campsites	56,321, increase of 60 percent
Number of Group Camps	322, increase of 5 percent
Number of Restaurants	194, increase of 29 percent
Number of Refreshment Stands	957, increase of 21 percent

California and Oregon continue to lead the other States in the number of areas with 188 and 174 areas respectively. They are followed by South Dakota with 142, New York with 137, Washington with 116, and Ohio with 109. Alaska, Arizona and Hawaii, with park systems established since 1955, reported 63, 3 and 21 areas respectively. The States which showed the greatest increases in the number of areas in five years were Wyoming with a 583 percent increase; Utah with a 525 percent increase, Colorado with a 180 percent increase, South Dakota with a 122 percent increase, and Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Montana, Vermont, Oklahoma, and Idaho with increases respectively of 62, 61, 53, 48, 46 and 42 percent and Arkansas and Maryland with 36 percent. The States which acquired the greatest number of areas during the same period were South Dakota 78, California 45, Wyoming 35, Rhode Island 27, Utah 21 and Pennsylvania 20.

The same five States continued to lead in State park acreage, as they did during the five previous years. New York reports 2,538,949 acres, California, 677,112, Maine, 204,374, Michigan, 181,591, and Pennsylvania, 159,948.

The largest single parks are at widely scattered locations, and the acreages of the 13 largest are as follows: (1) Adirondack Park, New York, 2,115,381; (2) Anza-Borrego Desert State Park, California, 469,388; (3) Catskill Park, New York, 228,130; (4) Baxter State Park, Maine, 193,254; (5) Custer State Park, South Dakota, 72,000; (6) Allegany State Park, New York, 58,420; (7) Porcupine Mountains State Park, Michigan, 58,167; (8) Palisades Interstate Park, New York-New Jersey, 51,566; (9) Boysen State Park, Wyoming, 42,366; Itasca State Park, Minnesota, 32,214; (11) St. Croix State Park, Minnesota, 30,557; (12) Myakka River State Park, Florida, 28,876; and Mount Spokane State Park, Washington, 24,330.

Considering State historic sites separately, Ohio has the greatest number with 54, North Dakota has 53, Pennsylvania 41, California 32, Wyoming 31, Illinois 29 and Washington 28. The States having the largest proportionate gain during the five-year period are Louisiana with 5 areas, or 166 percent; Idaho with 4 areas, or 133 percent; Wisconsin with 6 areas, or 66 percent; Washington with 11 areas, or 65 percent; Colorado with 3 areas, or 60 percent; and North Carolina with 3 areas, or 43 percent. Ten States reporting areas classified as historic sites or monuments for the first time were: Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, Oregon, West Virginia and Wyoming. The above does not take into account certain historical areas classified by the States as State parks.

Overnight accommodations reported include hotels and lodges, cabins, tent and trailer campsites, and group camps. Comparing these 1960 accommodations available for park visitors with those reported in 1955, it is found that total overnight accommodations increased 45 percent during the past five years. In 1960, 1.6 percent of the accommodations were available in hotels, 5.5 percent in cabins, 13.3 percent in organized camps, and 79.6 percent in tent and trailer campsites.

The total State park overnight capacity of 282,943 persons was determined by adding the overnight capacity of cabins, hotels and lodges, organized camps, and the number of tent and trailer campsites multiplied by four (the campsite capacity chosen by the same method used in previous surveys). Compared to the total of 194,993 in 1955, derived by the same method, the result is an increase of 45 percent over 1955. However, the big increase in tent and trailer campsites is largely responsible for this increase in overnight accommodations.

In 1955, there was a total of 64 hotels and lodges with a total capacity of 3,884; in 1960 there were 82 with a capacity for 4,526 visitors. This is an increase of 28 percent in number and 17 percent in capacity during the five-year period. The twenty-five States reporting hotels and lodges were led by Indiana with 9 accommodating 1,258, and followed by Oklahoma with 6 accommodating 795, Illinois 3 - 384, West Virginia 7 - 374, Kentucky 6 - 363, South Dakota 4 - 186, Tennessee 8 - 184, New York 3 - 121, Alabama 2 - 102, Idaho 2 - 100, Arkansas 2 - 80, Texas 1 - 80, Missouri 4 - 78, Minnesota 1 - 78, Pennsylvania 4 - 70, New Jersey 1 - 45, Michigan 1 - 43,

Nebraska 1 - 32, Ohio 1 - 30, Mississippi 9 - 26, Georgia 2 - 22, California, Massachusetts and New Mexico each 1 - 20, and Virginia 2 - 15.

Vacation cabins are provided in all but 11 of the States. New York with the greatest capacity, 3,092 persons, leads the list of States providing accommodations for 500 or more visitors at one time, and is followed by Oklahoma with 1,852, Kentucky with 940, Pennsylvania with 866, West Virginia with 735, Ohio with 696, Mississippi with 644, Texas with 626, South Dakota with 607, and Tennessee with 517.

The demand for tent and trailer camping is increasing and the popularity of this facility is evident by the increase of 60 percent in the number of campsites over five years ago. The States showing the greatest increase over the five-year period were Arkansas with an increase of 3,190 percent; Texas, 1,118 percent; Oklahoma, 1,052 percent; Idaho, 1,022 percent; Florida, 636 percent; and Alabama, 613 percent. Michigan now leads with 7,853 campsites, followed by New York with 7,278, California with 4,063, Washington with 3,937, Idaho with 3,500 and Pennsylvania with 3,004.

The capacity of organized group camps rose 5 percent over the five-year period and the number of camps increased from 308 to 322. Nineteen States increased their capacity by 3,806, 12 States showed no change, while eight States decreased their capacity by 1,877. Those States with larger capacity were New York with 9,658, Pennsylvania with 2,494, Missouri with 2,395, California with 2,305, Oklahoma with 1,642, Indiana with 1,499, and Tennessee with 1,475. Only 11 States are now without these facilities.

The number of restaurants in State parks increased 29 percent and the number of refreshment stands increased 21 percent since 1955. A total of 194 restaurants and 957 refreshment stands were reported in 1960.

Water recreation was reported by all but two States, and 40 percent of the areas in 48 of the 50 States listed swimming, fishing or boating. In the total of 2,589 areas, fishing was permitted in 49 percent, swimming in 37 percent, and boating in 33 percent.

A total of 2,589 areas and 5,497,278 acres were reported. Of these, 1,467 embracing 5,130,587 acres are grouped under State parks; 530 with 66,373 acres, under State memorials and historic sites; 301 with 250,319 acres, under State recreation areas; 31 with 26,842 acres, under State parkways; and 260 with 23,157 acres, under State waysides. This grouping is in accordance with the classification of areas listed on page 2.
